LOST DEPOSITS

In almost every bank on any age there are dead deposits, sums of money of various sizes apparently forgotten by this who originally left it with the bank.

Recently, a New York bank launched a campaign to wipe off dormant accounts. To do so it went to considerable trouble trying to trace owners of money which had not been noticed for twenty years or more. One man traced down had his old pass book showing a balance of $173 but when interest was added to it he received a check for $335.

Almost every bank which has gone into liquidation has found deposit accounts to the credit of people whose address and whereabouts nobody connected with the institution knew. Most of those accounts are fairly small but the fact that their owners have lost account of them shows how careless and forgetful some people are in their financial transactions.

LETTING IT SLIP

Another motoring season is in full blast. From all over America a steady stream of automobiles, more this year than ever before, is passing through Appomattox. They have CASH money ready to spend. What Appomattox to offer them? What new services and conveniences have we? There are possibly one or two more service stations, afew more tourist cabins, but outside of that isn't it the same old story of letting them pass through without ever knowing the full lore of April 1865. We are woefully short of proper and distinctive markers and signs to direct to tourist to our historic spot. Until we get them we will never get the full advantage of our tourist trade. We hear some complain of lack cash business, yet we are letting one of the biggest sources of cash business in the world slip between our fingers every day. Call a chamber of commerce meeting for tomorrow night and we'll guess you won't have six business men present. Will the business men stand aside and let the U. D. C. ladies do all the work to get proper markers and signs provided?

According to the Pathfinder, the government-owned implement works at Perth, Australia, Which had a monopoly on the anufacture of farm machinery, has been closed after suffering heavy losses. Private manufacturers are supplying tin machinary at lower prices , while the government properties will be sold for junk. Another object lesson in government operation.

An old story about Benjamin Franklin is again going the rounds to the effect that when he wanted to marry a certain girl, her mother objected on the grounds that Ben was a printer. She did not object to his trade, but said that as there were already two printing shops in the country, she didn't think there was room for a third one which he wanted to start.

Gladstone, Dr. W. L. Watts and daughter, Mrs. Lucille were recent visitors in Lynchburg.

Miss Terry Doss and Charlie Dowell, of Lynchburg, were Sunday guest of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Bergman and family.

Calvin A. Lee has gone to Charleston West Virginiawhere he has accepted a position.

J. E. Capelle, who has been under treatment at C. &O. Hospital, Clifton Forge for the past two weeks has returned home his condition much improved.

The girls auxiliary of the C.&O. Baptist church motored to Lynchburg and had a picnic and atended the movies there Saturday.

Melvin Smith of Lynchburg is visiting in the home of aunt, Mrs. S. H. Thomas, here for several day.

Miss Adell Thomas and Mary Louise Mehurin, accompanied by Ryland Hunter and Aubrey Thomas attended the dance Friday evening at Woody Brothers' dance hall near Lynchburg.

White-Crested Black Polish

All Polish fowls have a common origin. The White-Crested Black Polish was originally more common than any of the other varieties. They had but little crest. Those with beards might be described as having "a few feathers growing the wrong way" beneath the beak. The recent development in the White-Crested Black Polish began about 1880, at which time fully one-fifth of the crest was composed of black feathers and most of them grew in front. Since that time, improvement has been made in form and plumage color, and their crests are more than twice the former size.—Montreal Herald.

Avoid Overcrowding

Fifteen feet of nests for every 100 hens is required to avoid crowding. Some commercial poultrymen generally dislike straw, hay, excelsior, shavings or sawdust as nesting material. They much prefer rice hulls. New England poultrymen use shavings and sawdust very generally. In some parts of the East peat is rather commonly used. In the corn belt, straw is the standby, though excelsior is used more or less by those who try to produce clean eggs.

Rubbing Post for Pigs

Rubbing posts to help pigs rid themselves of mange mites will be much more effective if set on a slant of at least 45 degrees, suggests R. L. Donovan, superintendent of the North Central School and Station at Grand Rapids. Slanting the post enables a pig to scratch under his front legs and along his belly, places he could not reach on a post set straight up. The object of a rubbing post is to get the pigs covered with old crankcase oil which will kill mange mites. Therefore the rubbing post is wrapped with old sacks which are kept soaked with the oil.

Old Bees Die Off

The bees which come through the winter, reared the previous autumn, are old and incapable of much work. As the season opens they go out to collect the early nectar and pollen, and also care for the brood. The amount of brood is at first small, and as the new workers emerge they assist in the brood rearing so that the extent of the brood can be gradually increased until it reaches its maximum about the beginning of the summer. The old bees die off rapidly.

Black Rot Canker Common

Black rot canker in some form is of common occurrence, says the Rural New Yorker. It may be seen in the fall in the black decay of apples. And in the spring and summer it shows as spots on the leaves, and all the year, unless cut out, it may manifest itself as rough growth on limbs, as cankerous eruptions on the branches. Canker on the limbs has been recognized for many years as an undesired growth: cut it out when doing the pruning work. This limb eruption can be connected with the black fruit and leaf spots, to show how one follows the other. All are due to a parasite called black rot canker, and known to orchard doctors as Physalospora cydoniae.

How Milk Is Used

Of the twelve billion gallons of milk produced in the United States annually, according to a correspondent in Collier's Weekly, 46 per cent is consumed as a beverage, 36 per cent is made into butter, 4 per cent emerge they assist in the brood rearing so that the extent of the brood can be gradually increased until it reaches its maximum about the beginning of the summer. The old bees die off rapidly. is fed to calves and the other 3 per cent is wasted.

Agricultural Notes

There are more than 50 kinds of butter and cheese.

Plan to save some of this summer's second cutting of timothy and clover for the calves.

The LUXURY of Quiet

QUIETNESS—that element which means so much to restful sleep, soothing comfort, peace of mind, that already serves—makes new joys in travel for "Pocahontas" and "The Cavalier" patrons. Modernized and completely air-conditioned, these two dependable Norfolk and Western trains, operating between the Midwest and the Virginia and Carolina resorts, offer the latest in modern luxuries.

Mounted on rubber to deaden noise, the riding qualities of the new air-conditioned equipment are unbelievably smooth. They are lighted indirectly. They have reclining, individual lounge-type seats, roomily spaced; a beautifully decorated women's salon; pedestal, full-width men's smoking room; large side windows; rubber tile floors; and many other features for your convenience. The cheerful air-conditioned dinner, with the attentive waiter service and famous cuisine of the Pocahontas, combines excellence and economy. Luxurious air-conditioned Pullmans, with their partitioned sections, drawing rooms, compartments, and long wide berths, ensure quiet by day and perfect rest by night. Air-conditioned lounge cars, equipped with all modern conveniences, will add much more to the comfort of your journeys.

You will enjoy the luxury of quiet when you travel on these two fine trains.

Nerves — Do they torture you by day? Keep you awake at night?
What is it that keeps hospitals open and doctors busy? NERVES.
What is it that makes your face wrinkled and makes you feel old? NERVES
Nine times out of ten it's NERVES that make you restless, worried, haggard.

Nerves — Do they make you Cranky, Blue—give you Nervous Indigestion, Nervous Headache?
When nerves are over-taxed, you worry over trifles, find it hard to concentrate, can't sit still. Nerve Strain brings on Headache.
Nervous people often suffer from Indigestion. There may be absolutely nothing wrong with the organs of digestion, but the Nerves are not on the job to make the organs do their work properly.

Nerves — Do they interefere with your work; ruin your pleasure; drive away your friends?
You're cheating yourself and the man who pays you if you work when your NERVES are not normal.
You can't have a good time when you are nervous. You can't make or keep friends when you are keyed up and irritable. You may excuse yourself, but to others you are just a plain crank.

How your MONEY
WORKS FOR YOU IN A
Checking Account

When you put your money in a savings account you get interest on it. In a checking account you get service for it—and let the bank draw the interest. In return for this interest the bank gives you privileges worth far more to you than the interest itself.

When you maintain a balance commensurate with your use of your checking account privileges, the bank will be reimbursed for the expense of serving you. Otherwise, the bank may properly look to you to meet this expense.

Money in a checking account is an investment that pays you real dividends.
